CHURCH & MUSIC BACKGROUND

One can assume that coming from a home of parents that have devoted themselves to the service of the LORD, Kaloso had a firm foundation regarding the faith of the Messiah. She spoke about the following as she related her musical and church background: " I grew up in the Seventh-day Adventist Church and my dad is a Pastor. I got baptized in 2014, at a camp meeting in Kolo Mission. When it comes to music, my family loves music and we all enjoy singing."

When she was growing up, Kaloso got used to the idea of singing with her family every Friday night in their home. The influence of Gaither Musical group played a significant role in realising her talent in music. It would be a mistake to fail to mention that her mother was inspirational as she mentored her in singing in church whenever there was an opportunity.

The more she would have an opportunity to sing in church, she was convinced that she was destined to sing gospel music. One of the things that can encourage young people in their craft from the story of Kaloso is that when you are passionate about what you are convicted in, have the right support and listen to people who are at a higher level than you, there is nothing stopping you from reaching your dreams.

THE LIFE OF KALOSO MOETI

A testimony from the Mountain Kingdom

Kaloso Moeti is a 23 year old lady from the Mountain Kingdom of Lesotho. She comes from a family of 3 children and is the eldest. Miss Moeti grew up in different places because her parents move from one place to another after 3 years as they are full-time in the ministry. The family currently lives in Maseru, Cathedral area.

Our sister obtained her high school education at Adventville High and Emmanuel High, and currently studying a Associate degree in Public Relations (2nd year) at Limkokwing University of Creative Technology.

Some of the musicians that Kaloso Moeti draws inspiration from are the likes of Jonathan Mcreynolds and Tasha cobbs. The way they present their music motivates her to want to understand music more and how she will articulate this craft to the best of her abilities. It is very important as a musician to comprehend just how much gospel music in particular is a source of inspiration and worship.

In our churches, we may be aware that there are people that are not ashamed to mention that they only go to church because of worship and not the preaching of the word. It becomes therefore imperative for the singers to appreciate that they are doing as much work as the preacher of the word on the pulpit. The way that preaching transforms lives, even so does music and worship transforms the lives of listeners.

The challenges of music:

Singing gospel music doesn't exempt one from the many challenges that musicians in the industry face. In the same way, Kaloso Moeti experienced some of her own. In as much as feedback is important to a performer, the kind that is most valuable is from a professional. Not knowing if she was going in the right direction (as she didn't have a professional vocalist coach) she was at some point not certain if she was heading in the right direction.

Only singing in church wasn't enough for her and that brought frustration. Her recently released album was meant to be produced a long time ago but the challenge was she didn't know how to go about it. The resilient attitude she manifested was not because of her wisdom or strength but it was all by the grace of God.

One of the things that Kaloso struggled with was believing in her self and her talent. Perhaps she felt that she was not good enough and consequently she turned down a number of invitations for her music ministry.

A message to young people from Kaloso Moeti:

My short message to my peers, is that all things are possible if we put our trust in God but it doesn't mean that things come easily. God has His own time and as young people we need to trust Him in all things because He knows what's best for us. There is a reason why we are given the gifts we have, God want us to use them in the church and be the light in this world.

I struggled to find my purpose and I wanted to do things which were not for me but later on I learned that I need to serve God which is our purpose. We often think that we are too young to take part in some of the things in the church but we are supposed to be active in the church. My message to those who have not decided to come to the Lord, is that it is never too late to come to the Lord, His love is sufficient for all of us and there is a reason why He created us. Without God we are nothing.

SOUTH AFRICAN CHRISTIAN MINISTERS COUNCIL

Bringing the servants of God from all denominations into service...

The council has been busy during this lockdown period. As men and women of the cloth across Ngaka Modiri Molema Municipality gathered to organise a day of prayer for the Covid-19 pandemic and the ongoing gender based violence. It was encouraging to see the willingness of our leaders in local governance seeking to work together with the council in bringing about moral regeneration in society.

On the other hand, Ditsobatla SACMIC Region held their first elective conference as they were launched by the Provincial Executive Committee together with the National office being present. The mandate that was given to the structure was not only to grow the organisation but to ensure that God's people grow in the faith and that there is harmony in service among religious leaders within the Ditsobotla demarcation. The following are some of the leaders that were elected: Ms Mpho, Evangelist Dazuka, Bishop Monyebodi, Pr. Nkashe, Pr. Molusiwa, Pr. Legae, Ms Kolane, Ms Thokozile, Evangelist Sekobane and Apostle TS Motsie.

Philippians 2:5 "Let your attitude towards one another be governed by your being in union with the Messiah Yeshua."

May the LORD be with us as we continue to labour side by side with Him and His people. It has been and continues to be a privilege for me to be exposed to men and women in the ministry with such a depth of love for the ministry. To the team and our colleagues, may God continue to bless you and your families, even as we beseech Him to expound your territories.
